MEDICATED INHALATION.

A FEW WORDS OF PRIENDLY ADVICE TO THE consumptive.—His dangers and his remedy.

By BR. S. 8 FITCH, OF NO. 714 REGADWAY, NEW YORK.

When I published the first edition of my "six lectures on diseases of the lungs and she laws of life." in the year 1846, pulmonary consumption was aimost universally thought to be incurable. Physicians so pronounced it, and the people se believel it. Some physicians, more bold than their brethren, did indeed venture to suggest that in its earliest stages, and when not hersditary, it was sometimes arrested, and the patient saved. But these lare exceptions were confessed to be a puzzle. They threw no light on the means of cure, nor cheered by a single ray of hope the blank miduight of despair which rested upon the peor fated victim of consumption. Then thousands who might have been cured died of this cisease because nothing was done to save them. It was considered useless to doctor for an incurable disease.

I had demonstrated in my practice that consumption was not, even in advanced stages, incurable, and, with a view to dispel, if possible, the darkness and error which everywhere prevailed with reference to the true uses of the lungs, the real nature and causes of consumption, and to point out the means of cure, I published the volume to which I have referred; and it is now a source of sincere gratification that a most hopeful change has taken place in the public mind on this subject. Physicians are forced to yield the point, and confess that consumption can be cured. Its curability is even taught in some of the medical schools; and the glad news is spreading far and wide among the people that there is hope for the despairing consumptive.

But with this "lighting of his fears" has sprung up another danger to the consumption. Amid this multiform quackery, the consumptive is liable to be bewildered—to lose his confidence in all remedies, or to be cheated out of his time and his life. The evil is not so much in any thing positively injurious in these specifics an there is no more dangerous practitioner of medicine, and no more unmitigated quack, than the "one remedy" man.

Now the consumptive should be on his guard against these deceptions. For instance, he will find in every apothecary's shop a dozen or more specifica for consumption; each one announced to be a perfect remedy for all forms of disease of the lungs—a never failing "cure all." If he tries any of them he may, perhaps, find his cough temporarily alleviated, but a cure he will not find; he should not waste his precious time with them.

It may be he has no faith in these "patent medicines," but there is one which he believes cannot disappoint bim. His physician even recommends it. It is cod liver oil. This oil has remedial virtues. Years before it came into general use I used it, and learned its exact value in consumption long before physicians regarded it with any layor. But its curative properties are vastly overrated, It is a nourishing diet, easily assimilated; and has a sight medicinal quality; but it will not alone cure consumption. Trust to it and it will disappoint you. It has disappointed thousands; and, though it has had a great popularity, it is already beginning to decline in public estimation, and will, no doubt, soon fall quite into disuse, except when employed in connection with other remedies.

INHALATION.

public estimation, and will, no doubt, soon fall quite into disuse, except when employed in connection with other remedies.

INHALATION.

The inhalation of medicated vapor directly upon the lungs is, in some cases, an exceedingly effective mode of treating diseases of the lungs. But this, also, is liable to abuse. Too much may be expected from it. The danger just now is that consumptives will be brought to rely upon medicated inhalation to meet all the conditions of diseased lungs; that other accompanying diseases will be neglected, and that thus it will disappoint those who resort to it. There is one condition of the lungs in which the treatment by inhalation may generally, perhaps always, be employed with advantage. But there is not one case in ten thousand in whien it should be used alone. In fact, I have never seen a case that did not require other remedies than those used in inhalation, and other modes of administering them than by inhalation, I would most earnestly warn the invalid not to be induced to place a confidence in this treatment, which must be betrayed. The consumptive has usually no time to waste in experiments. He needs the right treatment now. He cannot retrace ground once passed over. Every hour he spends in the use of a remedy which does him no good is an hour's advantage given to the disease, which he may never recover. Do not be cheated by this speciality!

But do not misunderstand me. I am not condemning inhibition properly employed and in proyer cases. I employ it myself, and have employed it for years with great benefit to my patients. But this experience has taught me that while it is a valuable aid in treating consumption, it will usually fail of success and disappoint the consumptive when employed sind it restrace your there can be a substance of the breathing apparatus to the condition of the throat, and at once, whether perceptibly diseased or not, if there is a cough, or irritation about the neck or claiver. It has become common among many to refer all disorders of the breathing grous and deceptive practice, land the invalid should be warned sgainst it.

I might enumerate other forms of this "one remedy"; pecies of quackery; but the above are sufficient for illustration. Unless you would be cheated into your graves, avoid all "one remedy" treatment.

Of all the perils to which the poor consumptive is subject, that of being deceived as to his true condition is the most common and the most fatal. The disease is tiself deceptive, and generally involves the lungs in ulceration and decay long before the patient imagines it possible that he "has the consumption." But the greatest evil is that his physician does not undeceive him until the constitution is all broken down, the lungs a mass of disease, and the sufferer just stepping into the grave. It is a most lamentable truth that, as a general thing, physicians disguise from their patients the fact that possible that he physician does not undeceive him until the constitution is all broken down, the lungs a mass of disease, and the sufferer just stepping into the grave. It is a most lamentable truth that, as a general thing, physicians disguise from their patients the fact that their lungs are diseased long after disease has fastened itself there; and many of them, I charitably believe, have not the shill to detect it. If they would but sound the alarm at the first approach of the enemy, and use timely measures to ward off its attacks, thousands might be saved who now fail its victims.

And now, dear reader, whoever and wherever you may be, let me, with the earnestness and solicitude of a brother, warn you againgst this terrible delucion, against a security which, if faise, is ao certainly fatal. Have you a recommendation of the shift of the state of

CASE NO. I.—MES. E. A. M. WHITNEY, BOSTON, MASS.—CONSUMPTION CURED.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 20, 1853.

Dr. S. S. Fitch.—Dear Sir—About the latter end of May. 1853, I was attacked with sore throat, loss of voice, bleeding from the lungs to the extent of a pint at a time, and discharge of thick matter from the lungs. I frequently raised over a quart in the mornings and during the day. I had a very acute pain in my left side, and also in my lower extremities. I had also very serious discase in my kidneys, attended with the nexal difficulties attending it. I was attacked daily with fever and chills, and the pain in my spine was almost insufferable, accompanied by the most severe headache. Soon after I commenced using your remedies I found myself gaining strength, while other physicians' medicines which I had taken had continually reduced my system; all my severe symptoms gradually subsided; my throat became better; my voice was restored; the profuse bleeding from my lungs lessened, and at length subsided entirely; the expectoration ceased; my kidney disease left me, as did the pain I had suffered in the spine; and I am, at the period of writing this letter, rapidly progressing to the full enjoyment of health. I found the abdominal supporter and shoulder braces of great service to me, and should strongly recommend all who are attacked as I was to have them applied, and continue to wear them until they are well. Previous to applying to you I had tried many physicians without obtaining any relief; and I would strongly advise all who, like myself, are afflicted with lung disease—either consumption or any other—to apply to you without less of time, fully assured that if relief can by any possibility be afforded, they will receive it from you. I might also mention that for some time previous to my seeing you, I had an unplesant sensation in my hands, with cramping of the fingers, and that after I had taken your remedies the "salt rheum," which was evidently lying under the skin, made its appearance in my hands, and these cr

POUGEREFIES, N. Y., Nov. 24, 1854.

Dr. S. S. Fitch—Dear Sir—As consumption is so universally held to be incurable, or its curability so much doubted as to occasion long delay and great hesitation in applying to the proper source for help and a cure, I itsel it a duty and pleasure to state to the public my experience of your remedies, and you are at liberty to give it such publicity as you think proper. In January, 1851, by exposure to wet, I contracted a very bad cold, which soon settled on myl lungs, producing a seated cough, expectoration, pain in my sice, &c. This continued some months. I had physicians, used codiver oil long and faithfully, but nothing helped or checked my cough, and I lost nearly all my flesh and strength. After some time spent in he unavailing use of these remedies, I was advised to make a voyage to Euroje, but came back more debilitated than ever. On the 19th December, 1851, I applied to you in a truly deplorable state, both lungs badly ulcerated, my chest shrunk to about half its natural size, great debility, severe night sweats, scarcely able to waik, and no hope of recovery. Your remedies wrought on me a most happy change, in a few months I was perfectly cured and permanently so, I have returned to my usual business, well in all respects—no cough, no expectoration, no pain, no debility, and my chest enlarged to more than its usual size. I was then a merchant in New York city, and continued there until fully recovered. I now live in this place, in the active discharge of my duties. You can refer any one to me at this place, or to my brother at New Brunswick, N. J., or to my (ather, at his residence, No. 46 Beach street, New York city, We all recommend most earnestly the sick and suffering to apply to you at once, confident they will find relief. Dr. S. S. Fitch—Dear Sir—When a man feels that he owes his life to another, time duly increases his admiration and strengthen his gratitude. This is the feeling I have toward you. In April, 1852, I was attacked with violent and repeated hemorrhages from my lungs, accompanied with much cough, soreness of the throat, &c. I also experienced great tightness and shrinking of my chest, short breathing, and nearly all the most alarming symptoms of consumption. My nearest friends viewed my case as exceedingly critical and dangerous. I applied at once to you, without endangering myself by any other advice. The result was a perfect and a permanent cure. Your medicines, mechanical remedies, and inhalation, without reducing me, or disturbing in any manner my appetite, or even interrupting my professional employments, and without any shock or violence, gently led me back to health. I have witnessed many other cares of consumption cured by you. In your hands medicine seems one of the exart sciences. In the whole course of my life I have never met any physician whose preacriptions and medicines seem so uperringly certain to cure. I most cheerfully give you leave to use my name, and refer any person to me who may wish further information. when I was considered in a hopeless stage of consamption. My father and mother both died of this terrible

Of Mr. C.D. TARKTOWN, N. Y., March 10, 1854.

Tr. S. S. Fitch—Dear sir—1 feel it to be a duty I owe to; curseif and the community, to make a public action who described to the fact, that under your treatment, by the blessing of God, I have been restored to committe the health after going down to the very border of the grave with true pulmonary consumption. As I am informed by physicians, it is nearly or quite impossible to determine with absolute certainty, that any individual new in health ever had true consumption; that, although consumption may be curable, still the fact of such a cure can only be established by a post mortem examination of the lungs. This may, in mest cases, be true; but it is not in my case, as the circumstances which I relate conclusively show. Consumption is hereditary in my family. I have lust several relatives, one a sister, by this disease. It first began to develop itself in my own lungs in 1842, by a cough and the neually attending symptoms of decline in strength and feed, pain about the region of the cloud gut appeared to oppose to check to it. By the year 1845 I became very feeding an other than the region of the cloud gut appeared to oppose to check to it. large abscess gathered in the left side and broke, discharging a great quantity of thick matter, resembling very much that which I coughed up. This d scharge continued until I called on you in 1847. It proved to proceed from a cavity in the lungs. Ulcerous and tuberculous cheesy matter was discharged; but what showed conclusively that the opening was into the substances of the lungs was that the air passed out from the lungs through the abscess. I could and did frequently blow out a lighted cande, by placing it immediately before the opening and making a suiden effort at respiration. Here was positive proof that extensive ulceration, involving the substance of the lungs, was going on. All my symptoms indicated consumption—cough, expectoration, great debitify and emaciation, distress for breath, hectic fever, night sweats, &c. My friends and physician regarded me as certainty doemed to the grave by the disease which was on me, as though I had been already in my coffin. This was my apparent, hopless condition, when, in January, 1847, I most fortunately applied to you. I did so with very little loope of relief. You yourself did not express a very confident hope that you could rescue me from the grasp of a disease so firm ly fastened, but still encouraged me by saying that you thought it possible I might be cured if I adopted and faithfully pursued your treatment. I did so, and with gratifude to food for his blessing upon the means you employed, and witin gratifude to you for your skill and lindeess in treating me. I can say that I have been in the enjoyment of good health for the last four or dreyears. I pursue my ordinary business, have no cough, no pain, have my usual fiesh, and nearly my usual strength. I do not suppose that I am as strong as I would be with lungs that had never been diseased. The front lobe of the left lung is nearly gone. My case may appear almost incredible to those was regard seated consumption as incurable. But if the skeptical will write or call on me at Tarrytown,

CARE VI.— DERRASED LUNGS AND THROAT, WITH ENTEK LOSE

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Oct. 22, 1864.

Dr. Fitch—Dear sir—Permit me, at this time, to address a few lines to you, although it has never been my privilege to see you. Is it strange that I feel great respect for one who has been the means, in the hands of God, of reheving me of such bosilly indrmities? In the year 1826, my health and strength began to fall. My complaint was general debility and a derangement of the nervous system. I was declored by several physicians, but they made my case worse instead of better. In 1828 I began to love my voice, but with great exertion contunued to speak a little for the space of six months, when I became entirely speechles. Such a case, the doctors said, was never known, an what to do they knew not. They finally resorted to calomel, and made a cripple of me for the space of four years. My sufferings while in that condition, I will not attempt to describe. I obtained temporary relief, but found no cure for all my maladies, until I applied to you, by letter, for advice last spring. I was then speechless, and coughing almost incessantly day and night, with short breathing and pain in the left shoulder. I commenced using your remedies, and folk wing strictly your advice, and was soon relieved of my cough Eour medicines, with the cold salt waterbath, appeared to regulate and strengthen the system, and the result is, my voice is perfectly restored, and I am entirely freed from bad feelings, which had never left me for an hour in the last twenty six years. You have done for me what a number of physicians, in five different States, had tried to do, but failed of success; their skill was beffield. I have lived a must for more than twenty-five years but for the last two months have been abe to talk and sing, like I was wont to do in the days of my youth. My health a good. I have nothin
